McNab Context

Our McNab ancestors were of Scottish ancestry and one of our highlanders. The name ended with the marriage of Jane McNab to Robert Burns in 4 December 1878. I have created a descendant outline of the McNab family at <http://retson.ca/mcnabdescendants.pdf> .

Killin, Pershire, Scotland

Killin is a village situated at the western head of Loch Tay in Stirling (formerly Perthshire), Scotland. The west end of the village is magnificently sited around the scenic Falls of Dochart, the main street leading down towards the Loch at the confluence of the rivers Dochart and Lochay. The falls are crossed by a narrow, multi-arched stone bridge carrying the main A827 road into Killin. Killin railway station was on the Killin Railway. The railway station was officially closed on 1 November 1965.

The MacNab Clan were once dominant here, and have long been associated with Killin. Their ancient burial ground is on Inchbuie in the River Dochart, just below the falls, and is visible from the bridge.

Kinnell House was the seat of the MacNabs. A well-preserved prehistoric stone circle (possibly 'restored' to improve its appearance) known as Killin Stone Circle can be seen in the grounds of the house. To the north of the village lie the ruins of the Campbells of Breadalbane stronghold of Finlarig Castle, with its associated chapel. The growing power of the Campbells eventually ousted the MacNabs, who lost Kinnell House to their rivals. In 1694 Sir John Campbell of Glenorchy, 1st Earl of Breadalbane established Killin as a Burgh of barony. In 1949 Kinnell House and its estate returned to the ownership of the Chief of Clan Macnab, but in 1978 death duties forced the then Chief, James Charles Macnab of Macnab, to sell most of the estate.

By the end of the 18th century there was a local linen industry. Flax was grown locally, spun in small mills and woven into linen by home based weavers. Today, Killin services the local rural community and the growing tourism and leisure industries. In addition to walking on Ben Lawers National Nature Reserve, fishing for trout and salmon there are various watersports available on Loch Tay. Many local vernacular buildings have been preserved or converted, allowing the village to retain much of its historic character.

1. Donald McNab and Anne Fisher

Thanks to the research of Henry Roberts I have the names of Donald McNab as the earliest McNab identified to date.¹ I have not yet found a birth date but the age of 79 suggest a possible date of 1784. He married Anne Fisher in Scotland.

At the moment I have identified at least four children of Donald and Ann McNab,

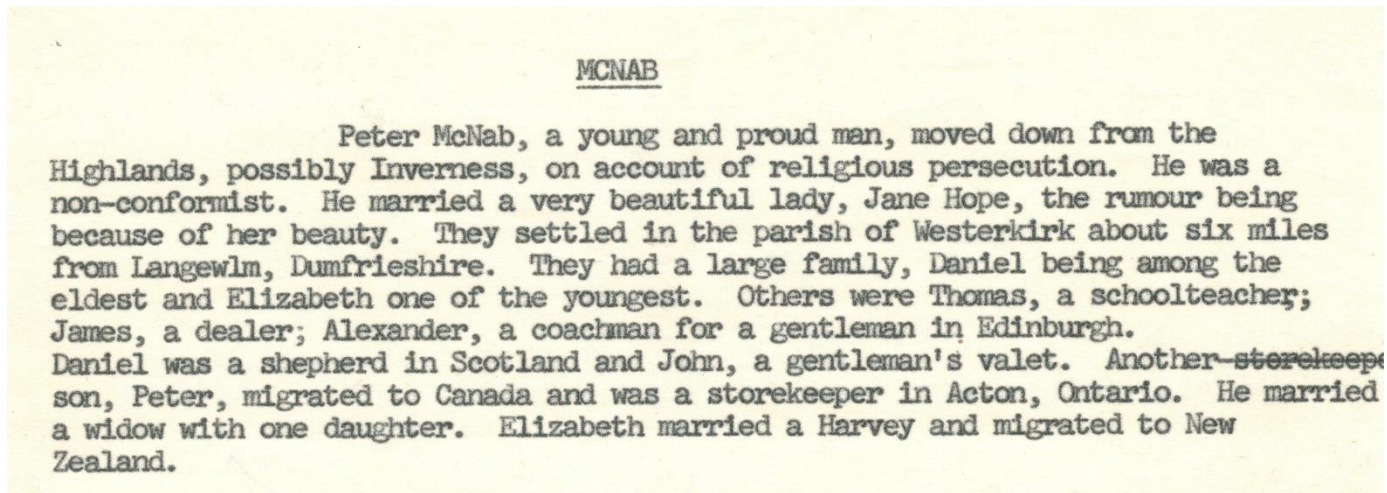

- i. John McNab b. Killin, Perthshire, Scotland, m. Isobel Mckane
2. ii. Peter McNab b. Abt 1784 in Scotland, d. 04 Sep 1864 in Westerkirk, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, m. Jane Hope 19 Apr 1822 near Langholm, Westerkirk, Scotland
- iii. Patrick McNab b. 30 Jan 1785 in Killin, Perth, Scotland
- iv. Anne McNab b. 14 Dec 1786 in Killin, Perth, Scotland

Langholm, Dumfriesshires Scotland

Langholm, Dumfriesshire known colloquially as the "Muckle Toun", is a burgh in Dumfries and Galloway in Southern Scotland which lies between four hills in the valley of the River Esk in the Southern Uplands. It is eight miles north of the Anglo Scottish border and 73 miles south of Edinburgh.

2. Peter McNab 1794 – 1859 Jane Hope

Information on Peter McNab comes in part from a report by a McNab ancestor, possibly Elizabeth Burns, which was passed on by William W. Loucks around April 1952 and will be referred to hereafter as the McNab Report². This report³ indicates that Peter moved from Inverness and married a Jane Hope.

He died 04 Sep 1864 in Westerkirk, Dumfriesshire, Scotland.

The date of the marriage with the beautiful Jane "Jean" Hope, daughter of Thomas Hope and Janet Anderson is believed to have been 19 Apr 1822 about 6 miles from Langholm, Parish of Westerkirk, Dumfries, Scotland. T

Their children include,

3. Daniel McNab 1827 - 1906 Grace Campbell 1831 – 1923

Daniel McNab, son of Peter McNab and Jane Hope was born 10 Mar 1827 in Westerkirk, Dumfries-shire, Scotland. According to the McNab Report he was a Sheppard in Scotland¹². He married Grace Campbell 01 Jun 1855 in Middlebie, Dumfries-shire, Scotland. According to the McNab report she was an accomplished singer whose home was at Eccellfechan near Carlyle and a son was born in April 1856 (but see below). This family migrated to Canada coming in a sailing boat and were six weeks en route. Peter had his first birthday at sea.¹³ It is believed they docked at Port Hope and traveled to Huron County near Walton where Dan farmed some twenty years. his brother John joined him there.

¹⁷ McNab Report

Jane McNab, daughter of Daniel and Grace McNab was born in Walton, Ontario 6 November 1858. She apprenticed with McCarter sisters in Seaforth. She married Robert Burns on 4 December 1878 in Morris Township, Huron County, Ontario, Canada. Robert Burns (2nd), son of Robert and Elizabeth Burns, was born on 14 May 1852 in Brussels Ontario. He was known as Bob.

In 1881 along with infant daughter Grace the family moved to homestead in Elkhorn Manitoba. In 1884 he traded his land at Elkhorn, Manitoba for a quarter section at Neepawa (SW ¼ 17-14-15.) purchased by his father-in-law Daniel McNab on January 7, 1881. In winter 1884 he worked with a veterinarian in Minnedosa and in spring 1884 lived with neighbour Jack Johnston until he got a log house and stable built on his own farm. He lived there to 1897. That summer Dan McNab's homestead and moved onto it in September. They retired from farming in 1917 and moved to Regina, renting the farm to son Bob who had been given the first quarter. Robert died in 1929 and his wife in 1941 in Regina. Their children include,

- i. Grace Burns, b. Mar 1880 in Brussels, Ontario; d. Jun. 1889 at Neepawa, Manitoba
- ii. Elizabeth Richardson Burns, b. 20 Apr. 1882 at Elkhorn, Manitoba; d. 1955 at Regina, Saskatchewan
- iii. Margaret Emma Burns, b.4 Sept. 1883 in Elkhorn, Manitoba; m. John (Jack) Alexander Stevenson, 15 Jul. 1913; d. 17 Oct. 1957 in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan; They had two children,

- iv. Robert Burns, b. 2 May 1885 in Neepawa, Manitoba; d. 30 Nov. 1950 at Neepawa, Manitoba. In 1917, he married Florence Cruickshank from the Oakdale district. They lived on the family farm after Robert's parents retired to Regina and had three children, Robert (4th), Agnes and Jean. A new house was built on the farm in 1917 after the original structure burned. All the furniture, doors and windows were saved by friends and neighbors who came by to help. The 1920's were prosperous and enjoyed a rewarding lifestyle. The 1930's were plagued by dust storms but eventually four-foot-high fence walls were built. Each fall, a load of wheat was taken to the "grist mill" and exchanged for enough flour to last the winter. Wood was cut and hauled either from Riding Mountain or the Sand Hills. In the fall of 1936, a polio epidemic hit the district and all three children were stricken. The youngest daughter, Jean, died at age 10. Robert and Agnes grew up on the Neepawa farm attending the local Osprey Grade School and then Neepawa High School. Robert married Doris Osborne of the Eden district, and Agnes married Earl Tomlin of Neepawa. Agnes and Earl Tomlin raised two children, Richard and Penny. They have two grandchildren, Darin, son of Richard, and Katie, daughter of Penny. Agnes and Earl moved back to Neepawa.

Robert and Doris resided on the home farm from 1946 to 1958, after which they moved to Neepawa where Bob worked as a car and implement salesman while continuing to operate the farm. Robert (4th) died in 1980.
